

Notes on contributors

Irina Chirica is a lecturer of American Studies at the English Department of Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iasi. She teaches undergraduate and graduate courses – American History, Ethnicity, American Literature, the History of American Art, the West of Imagination. She has three books: Aspecte ale temporalității în romanul american al secolului XX (1998), America, the Portrait of a Civilization (1999), and American Regionalism, an Anthology (2006), with Prof. Teodor Mateoc, as well as several text books and dozens of articles. E-mail: chirica_1@hotmail.com

Oana Cogeanu is a junior lecturer at the English Department of Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iasi, Romania. She holds a Bachelor's degree in English and Romanian, a Master's degree in Cultural Studies and obtained her PhD in 2010 with a dissertation on African-American travel literature. She is currently preparing a postdoctoral study on the travel literature of American ethnic groups. Her research interests are African-American literature, travel writing, literary and cultural theory. E-mail: oa_na_co@yahoo.com

Daniela Doboș is associate professor at the Department of English of the Faculty of Letters, Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iasi, Romania. Her research interests are English grammar and linguistics, translation and cultural studies: recently, she has authored "In the Global 'Hood': Slang and Hip-Hop in Present-Day Romania" in Hip-Hop in Europe (ed. Sina Nitzsche), LIT Verlag Berlin/Münster. She has published extensively in various collections of essays, and is the author of two books on English linguistics. E-mail: dana_dobos@yahoo.com

Iilca-Miruna Diaconu is a doctoral student at the University of Bucharest. Her research (supported by the POSDRU 107/1.5/S/80765 program) deals with revisions of the masculinity ideal, focusing on the figures of combatants and war veterans in contemporary American women's novels. Her research interests also include feminism, violence and trauma. She is the author of several anthologized essays. E-mail: ilincadiaconu@yahoo.com

Georgina Lock is a senior lecturer in English and Creative Writing at Nottingham Trent University. She worked in the theatre for ten years and wrote and performed her own soloshow, The Handbag Show, which premiered at the Edinburgh Festival (1984). The Unicyclist (Channel 4, 1995) which she wrote and produced was also about a woman's solo-show. Georgina continues to write and direct plays and screenplays including Short, White, Pleated (2002) which investigates the empowerment of a skirt, The Pick Up (2006) about the London bombings of 7.7 and Daddy's Bed, Nottingham Trilateral Festival, 2010. E-mail: georgina.lock@ntu.ac.uk

Mihaela Mudure is professor in the English Department of Babes-Bolyai University. She is the author of Feminine (2000), Katherine Mansfield: Plucking the Nettle of Impressions (2000), Coveting Multiculturalism (2000), Istorie și literatură [History and Literature] (2001), Ispitiri, trecute vremi [Temptations, By-Gone Times] (2002), Ethnic America (2008), Still Balnibarbi? (Post-)coloniality, Irish History and Culture, Cluj-Napoca: NapocaStar (2008), Lecturi canadiene [Canadian Readings] (2009). She has contributed to several reference books: Encyclopedia of Postcolonial Studies (2001), Encyclopedia of Erotic Literature (2006), International Encyclopedia of Men and Masculinities (2007), Encyclopedia of the Age of Political Revolutions and New Ideologies 1760-1815 (2007), Encyclopedia of Antislavery and Abolition, vol. I (2007), The Greenwood Encyclopedia of Love, Courtship, and Sexuality through History, vol. 4, (2008), Dicționarul cronologic al romanului românesc (1990-2000) [Chronological Dictionary of the Romanian Novel (1990-2000)] (2011), Dictionary of Literary Biography: Orientalist Writers, vol. 366 (2012). Dr. Mudure has published articles in Romanian and international journals. She is also a translator from English and French into Romanian and from Romanian into English. Prof.

Mudure is currently editing an international collection of articles on Mary Wollstonecraft. E-mail: mmudure@yahoo.com

Lucia Opreanu is a lecturer at Ovidius University, Constanța, where she teaches British literature courses and seminars. She got her BA in English and Italian and her MA in Cultural Studies at Ovidius University, and has completed a doctoral thesis on David Lodge's novels at Alexandru Ioan Cuza University, Iasi. Her research interests include Romantic literature and contemporary fiction, with a special emphasis on rewriting and reception. She is the author of David Lodge's Fiction: A Quest for Solutions to Problems of Literature (2011) and she has published articles on Romantic poetry, postcolonialism and postmodernism ("Intimations of the Future from the Archives of the Past: The Topos of the Library in the Postmodern Novel"), intertextuality ("Miss Jones Meets Mr Darcy: Twentieth-Century Avatars of Jane Austen's Protagonists in Bridget Jones's Diary"), "Wide Sargasso Sea – The Self behind the Mask of Brontë's Mrs. Rochester", identity ("Don Juan – The Trail of Balkan Identities", "The Inescapable Other - Identity Transitions and Mutations in the Constructions of Tolkien's Gollum/Smeagol") and related topics.(luciaopreanu@yahoo.com)

Gianina Roman is teacher of English and collaborator of the Department of English of the Faculty of Letters, Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iasi, Romania. Her research interests are cultural and gender studies, American history and civilization, film adaptations. She has published various essays related to these topics and has recently got a PhD degree in Philology, with a research paper in the American West. E-mail: gianina_todineu@yahoo.com

Anca-Luisa Viusenco is currently a PhD candidate within the Doctoral School of Philological Studies of the Alexandru Ioan Cuza University of Iași, as well as a junior teaching assistant within the Department of Geology of the Faculty of Geography and Geology at the same university. The topic of her doctoral research is the fictional representation of women suffering from various mental disturbances in autobiographical literary works belonging to female American authors, as well as their corresponding filmic adaptations. Apart from Feminism, her academic interests also include ethnic literature, American history, film and art. E-mail: deepest_autumn20@yahoo.com

David Worrall is professor of English at Nottingham Trent University. He is the author of Theatric Revolution: Drama, Censorship and Romantic Period Subcultures (Oxford University Press, 2006), The Politics of Romantic Theatricality: The Road to the Stage (Palgrave Macmillan, 2007) and Harlequin Empire: Race, Ethnicity and the Drama of the Popular Enlightenment (Pickering & Chatto 2007). He has held Fellowships from Huntington Library, Folger Shakespeare Library, Lewis Walpole Library, Houghton Library and the Leverhulme Trust. He has held grants for research projects from British Academy, Arts and Humanities Research Council and the Panacea Society. His forthcoming monograph, Theatrical Intelligence: Eighteenth Century British Theatre and Social Assemblage Theory will be published by Cambridge University Press in 2013. E-mail: david.worrall@ntu.ac.uk